THE PRESIDENT'S VETO OF THE MILITARY FORCE BILL.

On Saturday last, the President sent into Congress his Veto on the Military Force bill, from which we make the following extract :

"The purpose and object of the bill-the general intent which pervades it from beginning to end-is to change the entire structure and character of the State Governments, and to compel them by force to the adoption of organic laws and regulations which they are unwilling to accept if lefe to themselves. The pegroes have not asked for the privilege of the whites, to use it in a particular way. It they do not form a Constitution with prescribed articles in it, and afterwards elect a Legislature which will act upon certain measures in a prescribed way, neither blacks nor whites can be relieved from the slavery which the bill imposes upon them. Without pausing here to consider the policy or impolicy of Africanizing the Southern part of our territory, I would simply ask the attention of Congress to that manifest, well-known and universally acknowledged rule of constitutional law, which declares that the Federal Covernment has no jurisdiction, authority or power to regulate such subjects for any State. To force the right of suftrage out of the hands of the white people and into the hands of the negroes, is an arbitrary violation of this principle.

This bill imposes martial law alternative between its harsh rule and complisuspended, nor are the people afforded any time for free deliberation. The bill says to them, take martial law first, then deliberate. And when they have done all that this measure requires them to do, other conditions and contingencies, over which they have no control, yet remain to be fulfilled before they can be relieved from martial law. Another Congress must first approve the Constitutions made in conformity with the will of this Congress, and must declare these States entitled to representation in both Houses. The whole question thus remains open and unsettled, and must again occupy the attention of Congress, and in the meantime the agitation which now prevails will continue to disturb all portions of the pec-

The bill also denies the legality of the goveraments of ten of the States which participated in the ratification of the amendment to the Federal Constitution abolishing slavery forever within the jurisdiction of the United States, and practically excludes them from the Union. It this assumption of the bill be correct, their concurrence cannot be considered as having been legally given, and the important fact is made to appear that the consent of three-fourths of the States-the requisite number-has not been constitutionally obtained to the ratification of that amendment, thus leaving the question of slavery where it stood before the amendment was officially declared to have be come a part of the Constitution. That the measure proposed by this bill does violate the Constitution in the particulars mentioned and in many other ways which I forbear to enumerate, is too clear to admit of bring tranquility to the public mind. the least doubt. It only remains to consider whether the injunctions of that instrument ought to be obeyed or not. I think they ought and which must affect all parts of the country, to be obeyed, for reasons which I will proceed to give as briefly as possible. In the first place, it is the only system of free government which we can hope to have as | ing in the councils which decide upon the desa nation. When it ceases to be the rule of our tiny of themselves and their children. At conduct, we may perhaps take our choice be- present ten States are denied representation, tween complete anarchy, a consolidated despotism, and a total dissolution of the Union; but national liberty, regulated by law, will have passed beyond our reach.

It is the best frame of government the world ever saw. No other is, or can be so well adapted to the genius, habits, or wants of the American people. Combining the strength of a ends, fails to consider the rights it transgressgreat empire with unspeakable blessings of local es, the law which it violates, or the instituself government-having a central power to tion which it imperils. defend the general interests, and recognizing the authority of the States as the guardians of industrial rights, it is "the sheet-anchor of our safety abroad and our peace at home." It was ordained "to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, promote the general weltare, provide for the common defence, and secure the blessings of inberty to ourselves and to our pesterity.' These great ends have been attained heretofore, and will be again, by faithful obedience to it, but they are certain to be lost if we treat with disregard its sacred obligations. It was to punish the gross crime of defying the Constitution, and to vindicate its supreme authority, that we carried on a bloody war of four years' duration. Shall we now acknowledge that we sacrificed a million of lives and expended billions of treasure to enforce a Constitution which is not worthy of respect and They are produced in large clusters of ten to

If we now verify their assertion, we prove that they were in truth and in fact fighting for their liberty, and instead of branding their leaders with the dishonoring name of traitors against a righteous and legal Government, we elevate them in history to the rank of self-sacrificing patriots, consecrate them to the admiration of the world, and place them by the side of Washington, Hampden, and Sydney. No, let us leave them to the infamy they deserve, punish them as they should be punished, according to law, and take upon ourselves no share of the odium which they should bear alone. It is a part of our public history which can never be forgotten that both Houses of Congress, in July, 1861, declared in the form of a solemn resolution that the war was and should be carried on for no purpose of subjugation, but solely to enforce the Constitution and laws; and that when this was vielded by the parties in rebellion, the contest should cease, with the constitutional rights of the States and of individuals unimpaired. This resolution was adopted and sent forth to the world unanimously by the Senate, and with only two dissenting voices in the House. It was accepted by the friends of the Union in the South, as well as in the North, as expressing honestly and truly the object of the war. On the faith of it, many their lives and their fortunes to the cause. To repudiate it now by refusing to the States and to the individuals within them the rights which the Constitution and laws of the Union would secure to them, is a breach of our plighted honor for which I can imagine no excuse, and to which I cannot voluntarily become a party. The evils which spring from the unsettled state of our Government will be acknowledged by all. Commercial intercourse is impeded, capital is in constant peril, public securities fluctuate in value, peace itself is not secure, and the sense of moral and political duty is impaired. To avert these calamities from our country, it is imperatively required that we should immediately decide upon some course of administration which can be steadfastly adhered to. I am thoroughly convinced that any settlement, or compromise, or plan of action which is inconsistent with the principles of the Constitution will not only be unavailing, but mischievous; that it will but multiply the present evils, instead of removing them. The Constitution, in its whole integrity and vigor, throughout the length and breadth of the land, is the best of all compromises. Besides, our duty does not, in my judgment, leave us a choice between that and any other. I believe that it contains the remedy that is so much needed, and that if the co-ordinate branches of the Government would unite upon its provisions, they would be found broad enough and voting—the vast majority of them have no idea strong enough to sustain in time of peace the what it means. This bill not only thrusts it nation which they bore safely through the into their hands, but compels them, as well as ordeal of a protracted civil war. Among the most sacred guarantees of that instrument are those which declare that "each State shall have at least one Representative," and that "no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate." Each House is made the "judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members," and "with the concurrence of two-thirds, may, expel a member. Thus, as heretofore urged, "in the admission of Senators and Representatives from any and all of the States, there can be no just ground of apprehension that persons who are disloyal will be clothed with the powers of legislation; for this could not happen when the Constitution and the laws are enforced by a service on all interested, and that he report his vigilant and faithful Congress." "When a proceedings therein to the next term of this Senator or Representative presents his certifi- Court, with any matter he may deem pertinent, cate of election, he may at once be admitted or that either party interested may require. An its operations will begin so soon as the General or rejected; or, should there be any question and his troops can be put in place. The dread as to his eligibility, his credentials may be referred for investigation to the appropriate comance with the terms of this meausure is not mittee. If admitted to a seat, it must be upon evidence satisfactory to the House of which he thus becomes a member, that he possesses the requisite constitutional and legal qualifications. If refused admission as a member for want of due allegiance to the Government, and returned to his constituents, they are admonished that none but persons loyal to the United States will be allowed a voice in the Legislative Councils of the Nation, and the political power and moral influence of Congress are thus effectively exerted in the interests of the seffectively exerted in the interest of the seffectively exerted in the interest of the seffectively exerted in the interest of the seffectively exerted in the seffective exerted States will be allowed a voice in the Legislasimple compliance with the plain requirements of the Constitution, than by a recourse to measures which in effect destroy the States, and threaten the subversion of the General Govment? All that is necessary to settle this sim ple but important question, without further agitation or delay, is a willingness on the part of all to sustain the Constitution and carry its provisions into practical operation. If tomorrow either branch of Congress would declare that, upon the presentation of their credentials, members constitutionally elected and loval to the General Government would be admitted to seats in Congress, while all others would be excluded, and their places remain vacant until the selection by the people of loval and qualified persons; and if, at the same time, assurance was given that this policy would be continued until all the States were represented in Congress, it would send a thrill of joy throughout the entire land, as indicating the inauguration of a system which must speedily

While we are legislating upon subjects which are of great importance to the whole people, not only during the life of the present generation, but for ages to come, we should remember that all men are entitled at least to a hearand when the Fortieth Congress assembles on the fourth day of the present mooth, sixteen States will be without a voice in the House or Representatives. This grave fact, with the important question before us, should induce us to pause in a course of legislation which, looking solely to the attainment of political
